

did not fully realize the value. The moral foundations of most of its propositions are axiomatic. But, while that should make its rules more easily operative, it will not, of itself, make them operate.

And now the critical test is, what is going to be done about it?

When all has been done that reasonably and feasibly may be expected from legislatures and courts, there still will be much to be done, to bring about the needed elevation of the character of the legal profession, and maintain therein, satisfactory high standards.

It will require the active efforts and constant vigilance of independent, voluntarily constituted, altruistic organizations. From whence can such help be expected, if not from our bar associations?

Mr. Bryce, one of the foremost living publicists and lawyers, tells us in his "American Commonwealth," which enjoys the reputation of being the best publication on our institutions, that the Bar has declined with the rise of the commercial and financial classes.

On the 15th of October, 1910, the Bar Association of San Francisco, unanimously adopted a code of ethics, framed upon an entirely different plan, from that of the American Bar Association, in that it lays particular stress on the duty of the lawyer, to devote every effort to remedying defects, in the administration of justice, and is more drastic in its provisions, than any other code of ethics we have seen. Even if its provisions are too drastic, they are certainly not without merit, and we are impressed with the idea that the Association has taken advanced ground, for the reason that it believes the times demand the enforcement of such a code of ethics.

It adopted the following rule as to lawyer's obligation to the professional body: "To the end that the duties, which rest upon the bar as a professional body, may be performed, each lawyer is in honor obligated to devote to the common cause, a fair proportion of his time and labor.

Since it is obvious that the work of the bar can not effectually be accomplished, without organized effort it follows that a local Bar Association, should embrace in its membership, each and every reputable member of the bar. The refusal of a member of the bar, so to identify himself with the body of his profession, at his earliest opportunity, is a flagrant disregard of professional duty."

It thus speaks of the responsibility of the bar, relative to the jury system: "The bar must hold its own apathy largely responsible for the disrespect, into which the jury system has fallen.

In all cases, a lawyer is responsible for his professional brethren, for his own conduct and the conduct of his employees, in relation to the jury. Existing conditions demand that he also be held prima facie responsible for any misconduct, in the same regard by his client or his client's employees. To that end it is declared, that henceforth the lawyer, representing the side employing improper means with a jury, is presumed to be the responsible source of such scandal, and where such improper conduct is shown to have been employed, it is essential to the professional standing of the lawyer, representing the side involved, that he exonerate himself before the organized bar from complicity in or connivance at it."

It has this to say in regard to the conduct of criminal cases:

"This Association takes notice of the opinion expressed by Chief Executive of the nation—himself a distinguished lawyer and judge—that the administration of the criminal law is a disgrace to our institutions.

It further recognizes that the remedy lies to a large extent in the domain of legal ethics.

It therefore lays down the following canons, which should be obvious, but which it believes have generally been disregarded, in the trial of criminal cases:

The lawyer's right and obligation, to defend persons charged with crime carries with it no duty and no right, to prostitute either the letter or the spirit of the law.

The lawyer's primary obligation, as an officer of the Court, to assist in the administration of justice is neither abrogated nor diminished by his appointment or retention, to defend a person charged with crime.

A lawyer who invents or manufactures defenses for prisoners, or who procures their acquittal by the practice of any manner of deceit, cajolery, willful distortion, or misrepresentation of facts, or any other means not within the spirit, as well as the letter of the law, is to be reckoned as an enemy to society, more dangerous than the criminal himself, while success at the bar, won by such methods, can never be the basis of desirable professional reputation, but on the contrary, are badges of infamy.

Whenever an attorney's professional obligation compels him to bring about an acquittal of a person charged with crime, through the advancement of a legal proposition, foreign to the guilt or innocence of the accused, his success is to be regarded both by him and by his professional brethren, rather as the culmination of a regrettable duty than as a professional triumph."

Although there is a growing dissatisfaction with the manner in which the lawyer has executed his trust, we have every confidence in the legal profession, and believe that in the end it will discharge its legal and moral duties in such a manner as to maintain its high character and preserve the rights of the people.

MRS. SARAH H. WILKINSON.

1824—1912—87 Years.

At the advanced age of 87 years, Mrs. Sarah H. Wilkinson died in Abbeville at the home of her son-in-law, Mr. W. G. Chapman, at midday, February 4, 1912. Mrs. Wilkinson was the widow of the late John Wilkinson, who served his country faithfully in the war with Mexico. Mrs. Wilkinson lived together as husband and wife for 56 years. They lived at White Hall from 1870 until they came to Abbeville some six years ago. Mr. Wilkinson died two years ago. They leave two children, Mrs. Chapman and Mr. J. M. Wilkinson of Abbeville.

Mrs. Wilkinson died without pain or previous sickness. All recognized her falling strength, and none were surprised when the end came. She had been out of bed every day, and was on her feet the same morning of her death. From the growing physical weakness her heart action was weakened, and when the end came it simply ceased to perform its functions. She died painless and without a struggle.

On Monday the funeral services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Leonard at the home of Mr. Chapman, in the presence of friends who had assembled to pay respect to the departed one who had been so significantly blessed by Providence in the preservation of her life to years far beyond the allotted time.

At one o'clock the remains were taken aboard the S. A. L. road for Greenwood, to be laid beside her kindred who had gone before.

"Nineteen Twelve." Another page in our lives has been passed, and the moving finger has recorded our successes and our failures; our trials and our triumphs; our hopes, our losses; our ambitions, and our disappointments. And now in this new year let us all determine and strive harder, and more sincerely than ever before looking forward to better, higher and nobler things, and surely there will be no failure, hoping success will crown our efforts. So let us live the year 1912 better than we have ever lived in all our lives.

We have had snow and ice sure for a week but for the past few days the sun has been pleasant, makes us feel once more that we live in the sunny south; some of the snow would be very helpful in the days when the young men's collars wilt and the June bugs buzz.

The roads are sure bad, so much mud, we hear the traveling man holler stick and the one just in front hollering stuck. Good fortune attend each merry man's friends; who doeth the best he may; forgetting all wrongs with smiles and songs, to drive the mud away.

Mr. R. M. Wiley and his pretty bride spent Saturday night with Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Campbell and Sabbath with the latter's parents Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Long.

Mrs. Belle Cresswell spent a few days last week with her mother and relations, and the one just in front hollering stuck.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Wiley and little baby Mary Jane spent Sabbath with Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Young.

Miss Myra Young left Saturday for Waltherboro, S. C. where she goes to open a school at that place.

Mrs. Sallie Brown celebrated her 85th birthday Monday Jan. 22, 1912. What a great pleasure to still have Grandma Brown to fill her corner at the fireside and light her pipe and dear little ones see her smoke. May the Lord bless her throughout her life.

Miss Louise and Jennie Cresswell have gone back to their schools after spending the holidays at home.

J. A. and E. C. Young have started up sawing again will do some nice work at this stand.

Rev. R. F. Bradley preached one of his good sermons last Sabbath, but he can do that any time.

Mr. John McCaslan is much better he is at his stand in the store again his father from Georgia spent a few days with him last week.

How Old People May Prolong Their Lives

At advanced age the organs act more slowly than in youth. Circulation becomes poor, blood thin and watery, appetite fitful, and digestion weak. This condition leaves the system open to disease such as Coughs, Colds, Grippe, Pneumonia, Rheumatism, etc.

VINOL is the greatest health creator and body builder we know of for old people, as it supplies the very elements needed to rebuild wasting tissue and replace weakness with strength.

A case is recorded in Albany, N. Y., of a woman who felt she was breaking down by age and was doomed to the weak and feeble condition of old people. She had never before broken down so early in life, but VINOL made her well and strong, and she states that she feels ten years younger than she did before taking VINOL.

We ask every aged person in this neighborhood to try a bottle of VINOL with the understanding that we will return their money if it does not prove beneficial.

CONFIDENCE

We Back Up Our Statements with Our Personal Reputation and Money.

We are so positive that we can relieve constipation, no matter how chronic it may be, that we offer to furnish the medicine free of all cost if we fail.

We think that it is worse than useless to attempt to cure constipation with cathartic drugs. Cathartics may do much harm. They may cause a reaction, irritate and weaken the bowels, and make constipation more chronic.

Constipation is often accompanied and may be caused by weakness of the nerves and muscles of the large intestine or colon. To expect a cure you must therefore tone up and strengthen those parts and restore them to healthier activity.

The discovery of the active principle of our remedy involved the labor of skillful research chemists. This remedy produces results such as are expected from the best of the best-known intestinal tonics, and it is particularly prompt in its results.

We want you to try Rexall Ordinaries on our guarantee. They are exceedingly safe to take and are ideal for children. They apparently act directly on the nerves and muscles of the bowels, having, it would seem, a neutral action on other organs or glands. They do not purge or cause inconvenience of any kind, but simply cure chronic or habitual constipation and thus relieve the myriads of associate or dependent chronic ailments, your money will be refunded. Try Rexall Ordinaries at our risk. Three sizes of packages, 10c, 25c, and 50c. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store, C. A. Milford & Co.

The attacks may pass off for a time but return with greater intensity. Begin taking Doan's Kidney Pills, and keep up the treatment until the kidneys are well, when your old-time health and vigor will return. Cures in Abbeville prove the effectiveness of this great kidney remedy.

Mrs. L. W. Dancy, Fort Pichens, Abbeville, S. C., says:
